From the President

Hello Quilters,

As we are starting to get out and about, I look forward to seeing everyone. Although it may be a few more months until we meet, I am so excited.

I wanted to thank each and every one that participated in the Presidents Challenge for 2021. We had some beautiful quilts and designs to choose from. I had a great time guessing the maker of each quilt. Even though I did not know who made the quilts until the tally was in, I found it interesting to guess the maker of each quilts. The technique in each quilt was an interesting give away. Some of us find a gift given method and just stay with it. I loved it.

We need people to step up to the plate and get some new blood on the board.

We have positions that NEED to be filled to enable us to function as a Guild.

These positions work together to keep the guild running. Please step up and fill a needed position.

Thank you again for renewing your membership.

Happy Quilting,

Stacey Young,
GQG President 2021

Programs News UPCOMING PROGRAMS and WORKSHOPS

May

Kooky, Quirky, Crazy Quilts will be the lecture presented by Mary Calloway at our May meeting. Mary has collected many beautiful traditional quilts, but her real passion is for the strange and slightly “odd” quilts which we never see in a museum or quilt show. She is a very entertaining speaker and should be lots of fun.

June

The program for June 1 is Monica Hendewerk with A Little of This, A Little of That. She is a local quilter with a wealth of knowledge to share. Her workshop will be June 5, Woven Fabric/Tumbling Blocks.

Hopefully we will be able to meet by this time.

On another note, I will not be able to continue to attend the night meetings. We need someone to step up and take the position of Vice President/Program Chair. I will be able to help with the workshops and have everything lined up for 2021 and even into 2022. Please contact Stacey or me if you would be willing to help the guild in this capacity. If no one steps up to take offices, we won't be able to maintain an active guild. Please consider doing this vital position.

Margaret Neyman, VP and Program Chair

Please note: When attending workshops, the Church has requested that we enter through the west side door. Please do not enter through the kitchen area while they are serving breakfast.

All workshops are held at the First Presbyterian Church, 903 Avenue B, Garland, TX and start at 10 am, unless otherwise noted and announced.

Any workshops that do not have sufficient sign ups 40 days before the class will be cancelled.

Members - $45, Non-members - $55

Sunshine and Shadows

Sunshine

- Margaret Neyman has a happy announcement. My son and his wife have a new baby boy who was born on March 5. Mom and baby are doing great.
- During the Snowagetton event, Robbin Peck fell and broke her arm. She had to have surgery on her arm. She is on the mend and recovering well.

Membership 2021

Now is the time of year to begin membership renewal for 2021. Our membership fees are still $25 per year. Please take a look at your information in the directory and if anything is incorrect please completely refill out the form and send it back.

Please pay special attention to your email address. '1' (the number one) looks like the letter l, '0' (a zero) looks like the letter O, etc.

Also, please take a minute to look over the areas of interest section. You're not volunteering to be in charge of anything. If you will indicate areas you are interested in-or add some different ones-it will help us see where our planning needs to go and who to ask for help.

The 2021 membership form is attached to the newsletter.

Thanks for supporting your quilt guild.

7 Crazy things you never knew about Texas Bluebonnets

By Rebecca L. Bennett from the Austin.com happening in Austin website

1: The 1901 state flower race was heated

Back in 1901, when the Texas Legislature was nailing down all of the official state mascots, something of a flower war ensued. Three different speakers each nominated a different bloom and argued passionately in support of his or her particular choice.

According to TAMU, the cotton boll was nominated because it was an economic “king” at the time. Because cotton really isn’t much to look at, it was shot down. Next, a fellow who later became known as “Cactus Jack” nominated the prickly pear cactus for its hardiness and exquisite “orchid-like” beauty. In the end, however, even the vibrant prickly pear flower paled in comparison with the bluebonnet, which was nominated by the National Society of Colonial Dames of America.

2: All six Texas bluebonnet species are the state flower

Did you know that there are actually six native species of bluebonnet that grow in Texas and that all six of them are collectively classified as Texas’ state flower? There’s Lupinus texensis, of course, which is the bluebonnet that we all know and love. However, according to the Native Plant Society, Texas is also home to four other species: Lupinus subcarnosus, Lupinus Havardii, Lupinus concinnus, Lupinus perennis, and Lupinus plattensis.

In 1901, the Legislature elected Lupinus subcarnosus as the state flower, but since subcarnosus generally presents smaller and less vibrant blooms than texensis, citizens petitioned the legislature for a change on numerous occasions. Finally, in 1971, the Legislature determined that the easiest way to satisfy everyone was to classify all five species as the Texas state flower, and the rest is history

Garland Quilt Guild Newsletter

April 2021

3: Bluebonnets look their best from late March to mid-April

Bluebonnets usually bloom in early March, hit their peak in late March to mid-April, and linger much less gracefully as temperatures rise through May. Spring rains generally mean healthier bluebonnet plants, so keep those rain dances coming and we'll surely have a beautiful crop this season in Austin. By the end of May, if you do find a bluebonnet, it will be a scorched and pitiful little thing, only a shade of its former glory.

4: The bluebonnet has several known aliases

Nowadays, most folks know the bluebonnet by its true name, but the bluebonnet has also accumulated at least five other nicknames throughout history. 19th century botanists referred to the flower simply as the Lupine due to its inclusion in the Lupinus genus, though the general public more frequently used the names Buffalo Clover and Wolf Flower. The Spanish had several different names for the bluebonnet — El Conejo, which means “rabbit,” comparing the bluebonnet’s white tip to a cottontail rabbit’s tail, and Azulejo, which according to the Lady Bird Johnson Wildflower Center can be loosely translated as “indigo bunting” or “cornflower.”

5: Bluebonnets ain’t for eatin’

Believe it or not, the bluebonnet is actually toxic if ingested. Leaves and seeds from the entire Lupinus plant family are poisonous, although actual toxicity is determined by a number of different biological and environmental factors (see ‘Benefit’). Even animals steer clear of bluebonnets when they get the munchies. So be sure that none of your kids decide to have a bluebonnet snack during family portraits!

6: Bluebonnets aren’t always blue and white

Nature always has a way of surprising us. Just when you think you have something figured out, nature throws you for a loop every time. For example, bluebonnets are quite simply blue and white flowers, correct? Wrong. Most bluebonnets are blue and white, but the flowers actually come in varying shades of pink, purple, and white as well. Some botanists have even succeeded in creating “Aggie Maroon” and “Barbara Bush Lavender” blooms!

7: The bluebonnet has its own legend

And probably more than one. Native Americans and Spanish settlers revered the bluebonnet among all of Texas’ wildflowers and as a result, bluebonnets were often featured in folklore. One particular legend, “The Legend of the Pink Bluebonnet,” is recorded online by TAMU. You can read the full myth here, but the summarized version goes like this:

Garland Quilt Guild Newsletter

As two young children play in a field of wildflowers just outside of San Antonio, one of them spots a white bluebonnet and the other notices a pink bluebonnet amidst all of the standard blue blooms. They ask their grandmother why the flowers are colored differently than the rest and she answers wisely that the white flower represents the Lone Star on the Texas flag and that the pink flower grows in honor and remembrance of the brave soldiers who gave their lives for Texas independence at the Alamo. “If the white ones are special, then the pink ones mean even more,” she said.

If that legend is any indication, the bluebonnet is rooted in Texas’ very identity, intertwined with themes like Texans’ characteristic stubborn independence and heart. It’s like historian Jack Maguire once wrote: the bluebonnet is “a kind of floral trademark almost as well known to outsiders as cowboy boots and the Stetson hat... The bluebonnet is to Texas what the shamrock is to Ireland, the cherry blossom to Japan, the lily to France, the rose to England and the tulip to Holland.”

Yep. We’ll tip our hat to that.

Sack Lunch Ministry

The demand for the church's sack lunches has grown tremendously, with the church now giving away about 35 lunches a week to the homeless or the hungry. The following is the list of items for the sack lunch ministry operated by our facility location host, First Presbyterian Church. Just pack the lunches in a small brown paper sack with non-perishable items, such as:

- canned tuna or chicken salad
- peanut butter and crackers
- cheese and crackers
- chips
- fruit cup
- cookies
- pudding

You may also include a drink (although not necessary) as well as a napkin and spoon. Items should not require a can opener. Bottled water is also much appreciated. You can find many of these items at a Dollar Tree, Big Lots, Wal-Mart, etc.

The church also collects pancake mix and syrup. We also have a tip jar at the sign-in table, and if everyone were to throw in their loose change we could donate a great deal to the church each month. Thank you so much!
